(RTX) has been advancing the Texas potash exploration project for over two years, conducting exploration drilling, seismic surveys, and a desktop Conceptual Study, while also completing archeological and socioeconomic studies and fostering positive engagement with Indigenous and non-Indigenous communities. In 2025, RTX plans to pursue permitting for a small-scale solution mining test facility ("Texas Pilot Project"), with construction targeted for 2026, ensuring no surface storage of brine or salable potash and committing to full reclamation within 36 months of project completion. RTX will submit a Technical Proposal later in 2025 and engage with the community in spring to discuss the project and address concerns, followed by a call to initiate further engagement.

The presentation concluded at 10:00 am
